

About Us

At some point in your life, you may find yourself asking friends for a referral to a good lawyer. You're not alone. Four out of five people will consult or hire a lawyer to help protect their rights; to give advice on how to buy or sell a home; for assistance in collecting debt; and for any number of other issues. Whatever your legal concern, StephensonLaw is here to help you. We offer a full service corporate, civil and commercial practice spanning a diverse array of transactional, regulatory, litigation and dispute resolution disciplines. Our attorneys have extensive knowledge and have been practicing throughout North Carolina for a combined total of over a hundred years.

We provide the expertise and experience found at large firms, with the personalized, attentive service found in a small-firm setting. For the benefit of our clients, we have implemented a technology platform that facilitates unparalleled levels of efficiency and cost savings. We utilize the latest technology, which allows us to access information whether we are in the office, on the road or in the courtroom. In addition, our firm maintains the most current and complete online research resources available, as well as subscriptions to many useful print materials.

In this day and age, it is imperative that law firms utilize the latest technology available to ensure optimal results. Our firm recognizes the importance in technological advances in order to provide efficient and smarter services to our clients. Technology not only improves our ability to react and respond to your needs, but even extends to finding and partnering with the best and most appropriate experts, including forensic professional engineers, to support your legal claims and defenses. We have designed a law firm that uniquely combines crucial elements of both "brick-and-mortar" and flexible "virtual" office structures.

Our Commitment

We are committed to consistently providing superior legal services, as nothing less will suffice for the critical issues facing our clients. Clients do not come to us with easy questions, simple cases, or routine transactions. They come to us because of our reputation for outstanding service delivered promptly. Ask our clients. We have built our reputation upon our commitment to service and accessibility. Our clients know that we consistently provide the most thorough and aggressive representation of their interests. Whether the attention is on the demands of the courtroom, or simply prompt communication with our clients, StephensonLaw has survived and prospered primarily because of our ability to successfully provide such service.
