

Our Culture

We have been helping clients resolve their legal matters for decades, and place great value on the trust and long-term relationships we've earned over the years. While many clients initially seek our services during a time of crisis, we take pride in the fact that our clients continue to rely on our legal services as life's events demand.

We do not advertise like our competitors. You will not find StephensonLaw on a billboard, infomercial or television/radio advertisement. Instead, we rely upon word-of-mouth referrals. We know that if our clients are satisfied, they will tell others about their positive and professional experience at StephensonLaw. Our firm's approach to service is understanding our clients' business goals and then applying the resources necessary to help achieve those goals.

But StephensonLaw is more than just a Western Wake County law firm. Just as we invest in our clients, StephensonLaw knows the importance of investing in our local community. Our people value and devote their time to worthwhile organizations to better our neighborhood. By supporting the arts and giving our neighbors a helping hand, our community is strengthened. And strong neighborhoods leave our world a better place. Below is just a small sample of the organizations we support. If you would like to know more about these groups or see how you can get involved, just click on their logo to find out more.

The Human Advantage

StephensonLaw has grown in large part because of its uncommon commitment to delivering high-quality service and developing long-term client relationships.